Love

I asked my girlfriend of three years to marry me. I view commitment as a beautiful opportunity to grow personally and to sow into my wife's dreams and desires. I have prepared myself for this step by obtaining mentors in the areas of emotional intelligence, marriage and finances. I have prioritized my relationship with my future wife above everything else in my life. I was purposeful about preparing our marriage to be solid and fulfilling now and later, as we begin to raise a family. Marriage and family are my highest priority and I've proven that in action.

Financial

I saved enough money for a down payment on a house. I have an additional $3,000 saved in the event of an emergency. My future wife and I agree on the fundamentals of finance and the importance of saving, stability and investing. We also agreed to follow our budget, even if that means sacrifice. We want to travel and see the world, but we'll ensure that we secure our future before we make those expenditures.

Career

My career is a platform to practice excellence and integrity. I am known by my colleagues as a person that values relationships and people above myself and greed. I made a difference in my industry and in the lives of every company I partnered with. I have exceeded my customers' expectations and my own goals. I am considered a high potential leader, having received a promotion just recently. My fiancé, parent and siblings are proud of my career accomplishments, as am I, especially because I achieved my goals through serving others.

Spiritual

I love God. I am a man of integrity who reflects my values and integrity in the business world. I demonstrated selflessness with my time and courage in my serving. I have a close group of friends who constantly push me to become a better reflection of my beliefs, values and convictions. I've learned to stand firm in who I am and what I care most about.
